

THE ONE TRADE

YOU NO LONGER HAVE TO WORRY ABOUT

ALL ELECTRICAL PLANS SORTED

On occasion, you may require an electrician that can professionally design, build and produce a professional electrical plan.

FAIR PRICING

You require consistent and fair pricing. Pricing which is done in a timely manner, with plenty of clarification as to what the price includes referencing the specifications and plans the tender applies to.

WE COPE WITH YOUR WORKLOAD

Your electrician must be able to meet your workloads and demands. They should also have the flexibility and diversity to handle various types of projects. It is also crucial that they have the ability to dedicate the initial site manager to the entire project for its lifespan.

FULL RANGE OF SERVICES

Preferably your electrical contractor should have the scope and specialists to be a 'one stop shop' with each area of a project having suitably experienced and skilled staff for each aspect of the electrical build. For example, aircon and ventilation, solar, automation, data and comms, CCTV and security.

EXCEPTIONAL STANDARDS

An electrical sub-contractor needs to have a positive culture and well-trained staff who will ensure all work is carried out efficiently and to a high standard. Staff who ensure that your clients are being looked after in a professional manner and that clean up after themselves.

CLEAR COMMUNICATION

All changes and variations to a contract are to be communicated efficiently and effectively to you, the builder, and your client. Communication is key to eliminating unnecessary mistakes and problems.

ACCURATE PAPERWORK

All paperwork and administration should be accurate and sent through in a timely manner. Variations and claims are sent through for approval early before they can become an issue.

YOUR TIME MATTERS

Your timeframe needs to be met and you want a sub-contractor that will adequately resource your project sufficiently to ensure they are not the bottleneck.

KNOWLEDGEABLE STAFF

You will need an electrical contractor that you can be sure is giving your clients the best advice for their needs and requirements. Your electrician must have a complete understanding of the latest technology available in the industry, especially with the electrical industry advancing and changing so quickly.

LONG-TERM RELATIONSHIP

You want a company that doesn't have a limited shelf life. A company that has gone through the growing pains and has implemented enough systems and processes to ensure the staff onsite have plenty of support and training to ensure they can do a good job. A company that has a long-term and positive future.

PROVEN RELIABILITY

A sub-contractor that recognises the obligation to manage and fix all remedial and warranty issues effectively and efficiently as they arise.

LOOKING INTO THE FUTURE

Your electrician also needs to be advising your clients on how best to future proof their project or build for the potential changes likely to happen in the industry in the years ahead.

GET YOUR PROBLEMS SOLVED

You probably want a company with a problem-solving and proactive attitude. An electrical contractor that just wants to get the job done and will work with you to ensure things run smoothly.
